Dear Resident,

At Pepco, we are dedicated to providing safe, reliable, affordable, and sustainable energy to our customers and communities in the District of Columbia.

As we fulfill our commitment to providing that for our customers, we want to share information with you about work taking place at the Harrison Substation beginning Saturday, March 30 and concluding Tuesday, April 2. Our crews will be servicing transmission lines, and once this work begins it will be ongoing for 24 hours until the work has been completed. The crews rely on a vacuum truck and generator to complete the work, which should produce a low-level sound. Pepco employees and contractors will be on site monitoring the progress and they have been briefed on neighborhood noise restrictions.

We understand that this work, which is similar to an earlier phase of work conducted in your area, can be disruptive. We will mitigate the impact as much as possible.

Thank you for your patience and understanding while we begin the final stages of the substation modernization. If you have any questions, please don't hesitate to reach out to Linda Greenan, External Affairs Manager, at linda.greenan@pepco.com.

Sincerely,
